Nice job!

It was Aug 13th when I was packing my bag to leave for summer camp, when we were almost out the door and I forgot my water bottle I looked around the house and saw it sitting on the floor in the living room I snatched it, put it in my bag, then ran out the door.

When I got to camp my mom kissed me on the forehead and said "see ya! have a good time at camp!" I walked in and sat down where the rest of the kids were we were at the Rocky Mountains. I saw one boy with red hair and freckles with funny looking striped glasses, I looked at him and he looked at me, then I looked away, and looked to the girl sitting next to him with long blond hair with an old white dress, she also had a rat on her shoulder!

← Good details!

She was talking to the kid on the right of her she had long curly brown hair with freckles.

Then all of a sudden the camp counciler interrupted, "Well it looks like we've got everybody here! We are going to have a great summer!", he said almost as if he had a cold, he had a deep voice, was tall, and stood as if we were a gorilla.

I felt anxious to find out the girl "with the rat on her shoulder" girl. "We are first off going to meet everybody's name," he said, "let's start off with the girl with the brown curly hair, and then go clockwise," he said.

"Hi" she said, she seemed nervous.

"my name is Grace",

"Okay your turn" the camp counciler pointed to the boy with red hair, after him I was next,

"Hi my name is Jack" he said abruptly, then it was my turn.

"Hi my name is Chbe" I said in a shy voice. the kids went on telling there names, and soon it was the girl with the rats turn.

"my name is stargirl," she said.

When it was lunch I sat alone, but then I saw stargirl wandering around the lunchroom, when she then made eye-contact with me she was walking closer and closer and soon so close she sat down by me. she said nothing, it was dead silence then I finally said "hi" with a smile she then said hi back, soon we got into a deep conversation about school, and it all started with hi.

later on through the days she sat by me at lunch talked, and we soon began to be best friends.
